

A Lion's Mane

ABOUT THE AUTHOR & ILLUSTRATOR

Navjot Kaur

Born and raised in England and of Sikh-Panjabi heritage, Navjot Kaur has always found ways to identify with her diverse environments. During her academic years, she unearthed valuable insights into the connections between 17th century Spanish literature and the Panjabi classics. Experiences across these diverse cultural borders have enriched her sense of global citizenry, forging her way forward not only as an author, but also as an educator and mother. Having already led diversity initiatives within her schools, A Lion's Mane is her first children's book -- a story that contextualizes the many connections we share as global citizens. Navjot is a member of the Society of Children's Writers and Illustrators and currently resides in Canada with her husband and son.

Jaspreet Sandhu

Jaspreet is an artist in multiple disciplines including film, animation, illustration, and design. She studied at York University focusing in Film Production, and South Asian Studies. Her work focuses on diversity and cultural issues. The images in A Lion's Mane are her first for a children's book.