A Lion's Mane

TORONTO, CANADA – In cultivating children to become the global leaders of tomorrow, there remains a need for authentic voices in multicultural literature. Navjot Kaur's work, A Lion's Mane, has truly become a staple on bookshelves around the world. By promoting dialogue around issues of self-identity and celebrating diversity through the inclusion of global cultures, A Lion's Mane provides children with literature that is both educational and inspiring.

REVIEWS

"I would have loved this book as a young boy growing up in New York."

-Waris Singh Ahluwalia, House of Waris

"It is refreshing and exciting to see students so engaged in a story, not to mention a bellowing classroom of 20 roaring students!"

- Tanveer Kaur, Educator

"A Lion's Mane is a fantastic book that shares one's identity through an inclusive journey around the world and within various cultures."

- Pardeep Singh Nagra, Employment Equity Office Toronto District School Board

"Rarely do I come across a book that strikes a balance of being both educational and inspiring...this is what I found in A Lion's Mane by Navjot Kaur."

-Rubin Paul Singh, Poet, Writer, Human Rights Activist

"I know how difficult it can be to stand up to bullies who attack you just because you look different. A Lion's Mane will help children find answers to the questions they get asked every day, and the questions they ask themselves about who they are."

- Mohanbir Sawhney, PhD, Kellogg School of Management
